First Homework Assignment

Open Ended:
At my current workplace, documentation is not updated as much as it should be and much can be out of date, making it confusing to work sometimes, especially when someone is not familiar with what is documented. Tell me about your company policy on organized documentation and writing in general. Would you say it makes the workplace easier? If so tell me why and what are some examples?

Narrowly Tailored:
If I were a software developer and a small bug was found and I quickly fixed it, how much documentation would you expect? Would a small description suffice? Or would you like an "in depth" description of the problem fixed and the steps I took to find/solve the problem?
